TREASURY DEPARTMENT,

COMPTROLLER'S OFFICE,

ANNAPOLIS, December 18th, 1863.

To the Legislature of Maryland:

THE following Report of the Comptroller of the Treasury, is made in obedience to the requirements of the Constitution, Article VI, Section 2, and of the Code of Public General Laws, Article XXII, Section 9.

The Receipts of the Treasury for the fiscal year ended September 30th, 1863, as will appear in detail in Statement A. of the Appendix to this Report, amounted to the sum of $1,870,105 72, all of which was from the ordinary sources of revenue, and exceeds the receipts from similar sources of the preceding year by the sum of $220,129 60, viz :

Receipts for fiscal year ending 30th September, 1863,	-	-	-	-	-	-	$1,870,105 72
Gross receipts from all sources for the year ended September 30, 1862,							$1, 823,563 87
From which deduct proceeds sales "Maryland Defence Loan,"	-	-	-
						173,587 75
							1,649,976 12

Showing an increase from ordinary sources of $220,129 60

The sum received in the fiscal year lately closed, is greater than ever before received from ordinary sources, and when added to the balance remaining in the Treasury proper, September 30, 1862, of $446,749 19, made the whole sum available to the Treasury proper, for the last fiscal year, amount to 2,316,854 91.

The disbursements for the fiscal year, ended September 30, 1863, as per Statement B. of the Appendix, amounted in gross to - - - - - $1,286,327 44

Of which sum there was expended in the redemption of overdue Stock, $106,290 29

And for the redemption of “ Maryland Defence Loan ”

and the interest thereon, - 178,955 38

And for the redemption of Bonds of the Annapolis and Elk

Ridge R. R. Co., authorized

by the State, and interest

thereon, - - - - - 47,399 83

Making sum expended in the _____ redemption of Stocks, - - - - - $332,645 50

Showing as the disbursements for other purposes, $953,681 94

Of which latter sum, $91,053 10 was provided for foreign exchange, to pay the interest of that part of the Public Debt payable in London.

This exhibit shows a decrease in the expenditures, as compared with preceding years.

Amount in the Treasury available for the fiscal year, ended September 30, 1863, per

Statement A, - - - - - $2,316,854 91

From which deduct gross disbursements for the same year, as per Statement B, - 1,286,327 44

Leaving in the Treasury proper, a balance of $1,030,527 47 which added to the balance in the Treasury of same date, at the credit of the Sinking Fund, of $138,543 52, as per Statement E, and the balance in the Treasury, as of same date, to the credit of the School Fund, as per same Statement, of $36,998 98, left a balance in the general Treasury on September 30th, 1863, of $1,206,069 97 to meet future demands, which, under existing liabilities, were comparatively very inconsiderable.

It will be gratifying to observe, as per Statement A, that the very large sum of $1,435,237.39 of the receipts, was for revenue that accrued within the year.

The receipts by the Treasury for the current fiscal year, which ends September 30, 1864, upon an estimate as per Statement C, carefully made on the basis of existing laws, will probably amount to $1,850,000.00, and the probable disbursements for the current year, made upon the same basis as per Statement D, will amount to $1,023,000.00; which latter includes an estimate of $125,000.00 for foreign exchange; thus showing a probable surplus of receipts over disbursements for the fiscal year which will end September 30, 1864, of $827,000.00; and this sum being added to the surplus in the Treasury proper as of September 30, 1863, will make the probable surplus at the close of the current year, amount to $1,857,527.47, if this sum be not devoted, in whole or in part, to expenses to be incurred or in investments to be made. It would be well for the Legislature to authorize the investment of a large part of the surplus on hand in some safe security other than State Stocks, which are difficult to obtain of the currency debt; and investments in the sterling debt can only be made at rates much above par for the five per cents. owing to the high rate of exchange. There was invested in the purchase of State Stocks for the Sinking Fund in the last fiscal year, as per Statement E, the sum of $270,624.89, which sum purchased stocks of the par value of $251,853.46, owing to the market value of the stocks being above par—and there remained of the increments accrued within the year, uninvested, the sum of $138,543.52: making the whole amount of Stocks and Cash at the credit of said fund September 30th, 1863, $5,649,656.83; added to which are the investments made since the close of the last fiscal year, in the purchase of Stocks of the par value of $144,423.39, purchased at the cost of $161,623.75, which added to the increments since accrued, make the entire amount of the Sinking Fund at this date about six millions of dollars.

The State Stocks redeemed have ceased to have interest provided for them, and are held by the Treasurer uncanceled and subject to the orders of the Legislature.

It is a sound principle that no more taxes should be drawn from the people than are necessary to meet the demand for the expenses of government, economically administered. This principle, always good, is peculiarly so now, when the people have been required to pay taxes in so many forms, and to a large extent for the support of the General Government, and which will probably be increased by the present Congress.

I would not advocate a discontinuance or decrease of taxes under circumstances involving jeopardy of the State's faith or credit; but I am convinced by the experience of nearly two years past, that we have reached a time when the people may be relieved of a very considerable portion of the burthen they have borne with patience and fortitude. The Legislature of 1862, in causing an increase of State Taxes of fifteen cents in the hundred dollars, and in authorizing a loan, acted upon the known condition of the Treasury at that time, and of its inability to meet promptly all the demands upon it. They knew that the payment of certain claims had been postponed for want of means to pay them, and they knew of the sum demanded of Maryland by the General Government as the State's proportion of the War Tax. They were not aware, and could not be expected to be, that the decrease in the receipts from year to year, for some years previously, and until, in the fiscal year ended 30th September, 1861, they amounted to the meagre sum of $960,813.08, whilst the disbursements were in excess of the receipts, arose from the want of a vigorous effort on the part of the Treasury officers to enforce the revenue laws and cause those revenues to be brought to the Treasury. They could not then know that the tax upon the States for war purposes, by the General Government, would be suspended after the payment of 1862. It was not entirely safe for them to assume for the future a more vigorous and efficient discharge of duty on the part of the Treasury officers, then recently installed, than there has been hitherto; and they could not know that a more strict accountability on the part of holders of public money, would be required and enforced. They had also in view the long recess of the Legislature under the Constitutional provision, and were, no doubt, animated by a desire to make ample provision for any state of circumstances that might arise in the critical and disturbed state of the country.

Hence the measures they took, in the increase of the direct tax and in authorizing a loan, were wise and proper precautions at the time, and none the less so, that under a more fortunate condition of things since than they could at that time calculate upon, these measures have been found unnecessary. They probably would not have met public expectation by doing less than they did, and would have incurred censure, if untoward events subsequently had overtaken us. They performed their duty at the time, but the aspect of things now is very different and the people may be relieved.

A careful examination of the receipts and disbursements for the past fiscal year, will show that if there had not been paid into the Treasury, one dollar from direct taxes, either of those of the year, or arrearages, or from tax on Commissions of Executors and Administrators, or from Collateral Inheritances, or from Trustees and Receivers, there would have been enough received from other sources of revenue to have met all the demands for ordinary purposes, and a surplus for the year have been on hand. A similar result was reached in the preceding year, when the receipts from the "Maryland Defence Loan" are considered on the one side, and the payment of the War Tax and arrearages on the other.

Thus, for the last year, there was received from Direct Taxes from Collectors, -	$710,111 54

And from Direct Tax on Incorporated Institutions, - - - - -	33,571 47
And from Direct Tax on State and other Stocks, - - - - -	41,147 05
Making the sum received from these sources,	$784,830 06
And from Tax on Commissions of Executors and Administrators, - - - - -	36,756 50
And from Tax on Collateral Inheritances, &c.	24,205 04
And from Tax on Trustees and Receivers,	5,684 19

Making the receipts from all these sources, including arrearages, - - - -	$851,475 79
Amount of receipts in the year, $1,870,105 72
From which deduct disbursements exclusive of those for the redemption of Stock, -	953,681 94
	$916,423 78
Thus showing that the receipts from other sources were greater than the disbursements for ordinary purposes by the sum of - - - -	$64,947 99
If there had been no taxes levied or collected from these sources for the last fiscal year, so far as that year was concerned, the condition of the Treasury on September 30, 1863, would have shown this result, viz:
Surplus on hand for the preceding year, -	$446,749 19
Surplus on hand for said year at the close of it, - - - - -	64,947 99
Direct Taxes on levies of former years, -	369,071 53
Direct Tax on Incorporated Institutions
for former years, - - - - -	5,008 04
From Executors and Administrators for former years, - - - - -	932 97
From Collateral Inheritances of former years, - - - - -	1,077 37
From Trustees and Receivers for former
years, - - - - -	316 48

See Statement A, in receipts of Taxes of former years, - - - - - $888,103 57

It is therefore apparent that if no direct taxes, or taxes from Commissions of Executors and Administrators, or from Collateral Inheritances, or Trustees and Receivers, accruing in the last fiscal year, had been received, that there would still have remained in the Treasury, September 30, 1863, including the surplus on hand at the commencement of that year, $888,103 57, thus rendering the Treasury secure without the imposition of such taxes. It will be observed, from these facts, that if these taxes are now repealed, that in each year for several years, there will still be receipts from these sources, large at first, but in a diminishing ratio each year. After a full and mature consideration of this subject, I feel safe in advising a repeal of these taxes. The taxes upon Commissions of Executors and Administrators, and upon Collateral Inheritances particularly, were of doubtful propriety at all events. In the former the tax very generally fell upon widows and orphans, because, in consideration of the tax, a larger commission was in many cases allowed Executors and Administrators.

Whilst in inheritances and legacies, the inheritor was prevented from enjoying the full benefit intended to be conferred by the decedent. But another reason exists for the repeal of the latter, in the fact that the national tax law, approved July, 1862, imposes a tax upon inheritors of personal property, amounting in some cases to as much as four per cent. thereof. The Tax from Trustees and Receivers is not considerable; the law in regard to it, is, and has been, but partially executed, owing to the difficulty in some Counties to procure the necessary action by Clerks of Courts and State's Attorneys, or by the one, or the other of them; whilst from some portions of the State, taxes from this source have been regularly received, from others, there has not been anything received at any time; and this, notwithstanding that I have urged the attention of the proper officials to it. I think, therefore, that this tax should not be longer continued.

If doubt remains after the facts presented, of the propriety of the repeal of the taxes referred to; if there are doubts of the ability of the State to meet all reasonable demands in the event of such repeal, another consideration merits attention.

The Sinking Fund by the investments made for its benefit, and the cash standing to its credit, at this date, amounts very nearly to the sum of six millions of dollars, and is equal to, or exceeds the actual debt of the State, without it. The accumulations occur faster than the Treasurer is able to promptly invest, owing to the scarcity of Stocks in the market; wherefore, a very considerable loss of interest to this fund is continually sustained; and this difficulty will increase rather than diminish with time, and hold the Stocks at such high prices as to cause them to be purchased at extravagant rates.

The present large volume of this fund, if continued, would so increase as to require the purchase of the whole public debt, long before it matures.

Although about eight hundred thousand dollars of this debt may be redeemed after January 1, 1865, and other portions of the debt may be redeemed after 1870, a large part of the debt does not mature until 1890. And none of it need be redeemed, at maturity, unless it be the pleasure of the State to do so. But the debt that might be redeemed in 1865, is payable in London, and at the present and prospective high rate of Exchange, it would probably, within any short period of time, be redeemed at a ruinous rate to the State, and such as is not likely to be incurred, when the State is not engaged in its faith to make the sacrifice.

From these considerations, it would be advisable for the interest of the State, and the further security of the Treasury, in the event of a repeal of the taxes named, that four millions of the Fund be cancelled, which would relieve the Treasury of the necessity of longer providing about two hundred thousand dollars for the payment of the interest annually on the part so cancelled, and make the demands upon the Treasury so much the less; whilst the remainder of the Fund amounting to about two millions, would be ample, from the increased facilities for the investments of its decreased increments, and the probability of being able to employ them at rates more beneficial to the Treasury, to provide for the extinguishment of the whole debt, as soon as the debt becomes due, or, as soon at least, as the interest of the State is likely to make such extinguishment desirable.

It may be suggested here, that if this Fund be not decreased, the Legislature should authorize investments to be made for its benefit, in some other safe securities, in the discretion of the proper officers, instead of confining the Treasury to the Public Debt, as is now the case, for the investment of the accumulations; and this would also be wisely done, as to the surplusses in the Treasury proper, where they are not needed to meet the demands.

If further reason need be advanced in support of the safety of the Treasury, and of its ability to meet all proper demands upon it, in the event of the repeal of the taxes I have referred to, I call attention to the large surplus on hand at the end of the Fiscal Year, 1863, of over one million of dollars ; and to the large amount of arrearages due the State from various sources, amounting to upwards of a million of dollars in principal and interest, which constitute a reserve to be applied to, in cases of emergency.

But if it be determined to continue the taxes referred to, or merely to reduce them, or some of them, then there is in my judgment, necessity for legislation in regard to certain of them.

In my Report of 1862, addressed to the Governor of Maryland, I called attention to the insecure condition of the Direct Taxes levied on the City of Baltimore, owing to the interference by the Mayor and City Council, with the mode provided by the State for the collection of the State Taxes, and with the security intended by the State laws to be provided for its revenues from this source.

Under the system substituted, without any law that I am aware of, there is no Bond executed to the State by the City Collector, and hence there is no mode of compelling payments to the Treasury, except as against the City. An examination of the proper tables of this Report will shew the effect of the course adopted years ago by the City authorities, in the large amount of arrearages that have accumulated through several years past.

I call your attention to this subject as presented in my Report of 1862, pages xii and xiii.

A serious evil exists in regard to the Bonds of Collectors of Direct Tax. Section 34, of Article 81, volume 1, Code, provides, that Collectors appointed to collect the State Tax, shall give bond to the State, which bond shall be approved by the County Commissioners, for the Counties, or by the Mayor and Presidents of the two Branches of the City Council, or by any two of them, the Mayor being one, &c.

By other sections of the same article, it is made the duty of the officers therein named, to have these bonds recorded, and copies thereof forwarded to the Comptroller, immediately after the imposition of the tax, and the Clerks of County Commissioners are required to forward to the Comptroller within thirty days after the levy of the tax for the year, statements showing the amount of tax placed in the hands of each Collector, giving his name, &c.

By the law of Congress, approved July 1, 1862, all such bonds are required to be stamped, and without the proper stamps, the bond is declared invalid. The information required to be given by Clerks of Commissioners, early in each year, is withheld beyond the time fixed by law for this duty by almost all of the Clerks in the State; and the copies of Bonds are, in most cases, either not sent at all, or long after the Collectors executing them, have commenced the collection of the taxes; and during the year 1863, the Comptroller has had much difficulty, and been thrown into embarrassment in consequence of the neglect alluded to, and which he is clothed with inadequate powers to remedy.

When the Collectors bonds, or the copies of them are received, they are found in a very large proportion of them defective and worthless; and yet, they have been approved by the local authorities; many of them are not stamped, or stamped with a stamp of too low a grade, and all such afford no security to the State for the revenues placed in the hands of these officers.

There are light penalties, it is true, for the infraction of the Stamp law, and the Clerks of the Commissioners are liable to indictment and a small fine for remissness in the duties, above alluded to, to be performed by them; but before action can be taken to enforce the penalties, very serious loss may arise to the State, whilst to enforce the penalties, the Comptroller would be compelled to be absent much of the time from his office.

At this time there are Collectors of State Taxes having large sums in their hands to collect, from whom the State has no security whatever, and whilst I have urged upon the Clerks to Commissioners, and in some cases the Collectors themselves, the performance of their duty in this respect, in certain cases, no attention has been paid thereto.

I suggest that the Comptroller be empowered to correct these difficulties promptly, or that the Legislature provide some mode for the correction of these evils.

By Resolution No. 20, of the Session of 1862, the Comptroller was required to bring suit against all persons indebted to the State. The labor of making up the accounts (many of which were surrounded with difficulty) caused some months to elapse before these accounts were prepared for suit. This delay was inevitable, in view of the large amount of current business then pressing constantly upon Comptroller and Clerks. These accounts, however, were placed in the hands of State's Attorneys, very generally, in time for the autumn and winter Courts of 1862, and instructions forwarded in almost every case, to proceed at once with the suits; and in cases where judgments had been obtained, on suits hitherto brought, the State's Attorneys were requested to have executions issued at once, and such claims pressed to speedy settlement. I regret to say that the instructions of the Comptroller in these particulars, have in many instances been disregarded, and hence the continuation in the several Tables of this Report, of so large a number of persons still standing indebted to the State.

The Comptroller is responsible that means be provided to meet the demands upon the Treasury, and that he may not fail in this important duty, there is needed some legislation upon this subject in addition to that already provided.

I call the attention of the Legislature to the suggestions made in my Report of 1862, pages ix, x and xi in regard to the unclaimed portions of the appropriations made by the Act of 1860, Chapter 303, to works of Internal Improvement upon the Eastern Shore. The circumstances in relation to such appropriations, continue much the same as then set forth.

The nett receipts from Tobacco Inspections for the last Fiscal year, as per Table No. 8, are about the same as those of the preceding year. There would no doubt, have been a material increase of revenue from this source, but for the interruption of Rail Road communication, during the year, with the West.

Shipments of Tobacco, inspected within the year, have not been made to the extent anticipated, whereby a very large portion of the Tobacco inspected remains in the warehouses, upon which the outage has not been collected.

This branch of the service requires, in my judgment, some further legislation.

An Act was passed by the Legislature of 1860, requiring the warehouses to be leased out by Commissioners appointed by said Act, and otherwise making material alterations in the inspections. That law remains unrepealed, and has never, that I am advised of, been declared by a Judicial Tribunal unconstitutional, yet the law has never been carried out, and the inspections have been continued to be made upon the laws enacted prior to the passage of the Act of 1860. By the Acts under which the inspection is conducted, the inspected Tobacco may remain in the warehouses a full year before storage can be charged upon it, and much of it so remains.

The handling of this Tobacco, very frequently in the course of a year, to reach parcels ordered for shipment entails a heavy expense for labor, and causes an actual loss to the State from the inspection of it.

The Reports of the Inspector General of Grain, since April, 1862, have shown such meagre receipts from this source, showing them totally inadequate to pay the Inspectors' salaries, or even a moiety thereof, that I have considered it unnecessary to encumber the Books of this Office, or the Tables of this Report, with them.

This is the result of the defects of the laws regulating the Inspection of Grain.

A proper law upon this subject dispensing with the inspection, but placing the weighing of all grain necessary to be weighed, in the hands of the State's officers, would afford, over and above the cost of weighing, and the salaries of the officers, a handsome revenue to the State; whilst but little, if any, additional expense would be incurred by the producer or seller for the additional security, afforded them, by having this duty performed by sworn State's officers.

The receipts from licenses to Auctioneers go directly to the Treasury of the State, as is proper they should; but the receipts from Auction Duties, unless they amount to a sum exceeding twenty thousand dollars, annually, go to the Mayor and City Council of Baltimore, for the improvement of a channel in the Chesapeake bay and Patapsco river.

During my official term there has not been received, in any one year, one-third of the sum named. It has moreover been difficult for this Department to obtain from certain of the licensed Auctioneers reports of their sales, and several of them are now in default in regard thereto.

At best this office is only made, by the existing laws, on that subject, Code, vol. 2, art 4, the accountant between the Auctioneers and the Mayor and City Council in regard to the duties, whilst the receipts from this source only enter the Treasury to be shortly withdrawn therefrom; thus imposing an unnecessary labor upon this Department. I suggest that the law be so changed in regard to the duties, as to cause the Auctioneers to render their accounts to some officer of Baltimore City, and that the payment of the duties be made directly to him.

Sometime in the early part of the past Fiscal Year, the Assessors and Collectors of the United States' Tax, set up a claim on their part, to bring the revenues of the State from Dividends and Interest received by the State from its Stocks and Mortgages in Banks, Rail Roads and other Corporations, under the operation of the United States' Tax Law of 1862. I did not consider this claim well founded, and consulted with Thomas S. Alexander, Esq., of Baltimore City, whose judgment of the question, I found to agree with my own. With his valuable aid the whole question was argued before the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, and resulted in the exemption of the State, by the decision of the Commissioner, from the payment of any Tax whatever. By this decision, at least twenty thousand dollars, annually, will be saved to the Treasury.

Whilst this exemption was thus secured to the State, and the Banks and other Corporations having Dividends and Interest to pay the State, were absolved from the payment of the Tax of three per cent. on these Dividends and Interest due to the State, certain of the Banks claimed to appropriate to themselves, or their taxable Stockholders, the benefits resulting, so far as they were concerned, from this exemption; thus, whilst the Dividends and Interest due to the State were thus exempted from the operations of the National Tax; and whilst by the laws of the State the Stocks held by the State, or for its benefit, or for the benefit of the Schools' Fund in these Institutions, were exempted from taxation, and in the settlement of State Taxes with the Treasury these Stocks were exempted, certain of the Banks from their gross profits, part of which belonged to the State, or to the "Funds," paid this National Tax from the gross fund of the Bank, and paid also State, and in some cases, City Taxes, in like manner, and on the profits thus reduced, declared their Dividends, giving to the State and the "Funds," only the same amount of Dividend paid to other Stockholders who were liable to these taxes, and for whom the Banks paid the taxes before the Dividends were declared.

As the Banks paid no taxes of any kind for the State, or the Stocks held by the "Funds," and did pay from their gross, or united means, for other Stockholders, I claimed that for all such taxes, so paid, they should pay an equivalent, in addition to the usual Dividend to the State. After much controversy upon this subject the Banks, with the exception of the Bank of Baltimore, the Hagerstown Bank, and the Easton Bank, admitted the justice and propriety of the claim made by me, and made settlements upon the basis I claimed.

The three Banks named have not done so, and suit has been brought by the State against the Bank of Baltimore, to obtain from that Bank what is believed to be a legal and just settlement of this question. This suit is still pending.

Many of the accounts of the incorporated Institutions of the State for State Taxes, remain unsettled. Some of these Corporations have paid no taxes for years.

The system of collecting these taxes is a bad one; they are required to pay directly to the Treasurer, and misconceptions in relation to the assessments under which they are to pay, cause many of them to remit a less sum than they should. The Comptroller, with his other duties, can scarcely ever find time to call upon them personally, and it would appear that without he could do so, or employ a competent person for that purpose, many of these accounts will remain unsettled. Another difficulty with regard to them exists. Acts of incorporation are obtained, but in many cases no organization is effected, perhaps for one, two or more years, under these Acts.

The Comptroller has no ready means of knowing of them, and many of them proceed to business and pay no attention to the payment of their taxes.

Some provision should be made to compel each of them to report themselves, and the amount of their assessments, so that they may be placed upon the books in every case. But settlements or adjustments of the accounts with many of them had to be deferred on account of a question pending before the Court of Appeals, of the State vs. the Savings Bank of Baltimore.

I had hoped that a decision would have been made in this case, which would have settled disputed questions between the State and these Corporations upon the subject of exemptions from the payment of State Tax in certain cases.

This case involves questions and principles applicable to many others, and hence in such cases the adjustments had to be deferred.

The amount distributed to the several Counties and the City of Baltimore, for the proportion of each, of the Schools Fund, was greater in the last Fiscal Year than ever before; thus giving increased facilities for educational purposes.

In the Statement A, of receipts into the Treasury in the last Fiscal Year, will be found an item of $14,416 67, from the Annapolis and Elkridge Rail Road Company; of which the sum of $14,286 72, was paid by the said Company as the balance of profits of said road, as shown by their Report of December, 1862. I believe this is the only payment ever made by that Company to the Treasury, or that has ever been received by the State, either directly or indirectly, from any source for said Company.

The singular language employed in the Act of 1841, chapter 168, has had the effect by the construction put upon Sections 2 and 3, to cause the State's means derived from other sources, to be made applicable to the payment of the interest on the bonds issued, from time to time, by said Company, and also to the payment of the principal of said bonds. I do not intend to be understood that the constructions placed upon the Sections referred to, were improper from the language used. But the effect has been, that in addition to the large sums invested in said road by the State, and from which no return or revenue has ever been received, except the one payment, the State's revenues derived from other sources, have been used for the payment of the interest, and redemption of the bonds of the Company.

Of the joint fares of the Annapolis and Elk Ridge Rail Road Company, and the Washington Branch of the Baltimore and Ohio Rail Road Company, seven-fifteenths of the proportion of those fares to which the Washington Road is entitled, have been set apart and passed to the credit of the Annapolis and Elk Ridge Rail Road Company, under the Act referred to, notwithstanding that there was nothing received by the Treasury from either the one or the other of those roads from these fares. The only interest the State had in these fares, was the capitation of one-fifth of the fares of passengers passing over the Washington Road, and this is the only proportion of such fares ever paid to the State, and which have been paid entirely by the Washington Road.

Thus, whilst the State was entitled to, and received only the one-fifth of the proportion of the joint fares to which the Washington Road was entitled, by the law in question, seven-fifteenths of the proportion of the Washington Branch, thereof, have been carried to the credit of the Annapolis and Elk Ridge Rail Road Company, whilst not a dollar has been received from either Company, except the capitation from the Washington Road, on account of the joint fares. It is not believed that the Legislature, in enacting Chapter 168, of 1841, intended to make the Treasury of the State tributary to the Annapolis and Elk Ridge Rail Road Company, in addition to the large sums advanced by the State, for the construction and equipment of the road, notwithstanding the peculiarity of the phraseology of the Act alluded to.

The business and travel of the road have largely increased within a few years past, and induced the hope of receipts with each semi-annual report made by its officers.

The two Reports made since the payment of the balance on hand, December 1, 1862, show that the entire receipts since have been absorbed, and that the Company has also incurred debt.

I ask your careful consideration of this question, as one affecting the interests of the State, as to what ought to be received from the Company; and, more especially, that something may be done to keep the revenues of the State derived from other sources, from being applied to the obligations of this road.

The receipts from the Susquehanna and Tide Water Canal Company, in the past two years, have been greater than had hitherto been received from that Company, but still barely sufficient to pay the interest and exchange on the original sum of one million of dollars, for which the State advanced its credit in London, and upon which the State pays regularly the interest; leaving the arrears of interest and exchange due by the said Company to the State, for deficiencies in payment by the Company in former years unreduced.

The terms of the loan by the State, as per Chapter 416, of 1838, obliged the Company to provide for the payment of the principal thereof, 1st January, 1864, being one year in advance of the time when the bonds of the State may be redeemed in London.

Your attention is directed to this subject in view of the short time intervening when the obligation of the Company requires it to make payment, not only of the interest but the principal of this debt; there has been no provision made by the Company, that I am advised of, for this payment.

The able management of the Baltimore and Ohio Rail Road Company, has brought large receipts to the Treasury from this Company in the last two years, notwithstanding the untoward events so frequently overtaking the Road within that period. The receipts from this Road in the past fiscal year, exceeded the sum of $350,000.00, and the appearances thus far in the current fiscal year, are that even this large sum will be exceeded in the receipts to September 30, 1864.

The license system of the State, as it now stands, works exceedingly well, and produces a handsome revenue. The only legislation called for, is in relation to Agents of Foreign Insurance Companies, in some suitable provision to punish infractions of the law by those acting without the required license. Attempts hitherto to reach such persons, have been unavailing by the mode provided.

A custom prevails with some of the Clerks of Circuit Courts to issue what they call "Permits," which are understood to be licenses from themselves without the Comptroller's stamp thereon. This custom destroys the check intended to be provided by the law requiring the Comptroller's stamp on every license issued, and requiring the Comptroller to keep always on hand the necessary licenses to meet the orders for them. It is difficult, under such circumstances, to keep the accounts with the Clerks for licenses furnished them; or to make the accounts of licenses delivered and charged to them, agree with those issued by the Clerks and those reported on hand.

By an oversight of the Legislature of 1862, the increase of Direct Tax by fifteen cents on each one hundred dollars, was not made applicable to the Section 103 of Article 81, Code of General Laws, relating to the tax on the Public Debt. At the time of providing the payment of the July interest of 1862, as required by Section 104 of same Article, the Treasurer believing that the intention of the Legislature was to tax all property alike, retained one quarter per cent. It was generally acquiesced in by the holders of State Stock at that time; but dissatisfaction having been expressed subsequently by some of the holders of the Stock, to avoid difficulty, the Treasurer, in providing the July interest for 1863, retained only a tax of one-tenth of one per cent., as authorized by the Section 103 of Article 81. To correct this matter, it is suggested that the Legislature pass an Explanatory Act, supplementary to the Act of 1862, legalizing the tax on this item at one-fourth of one per cent.; or otherwise refunding the additional fifteen cents on each one hundred dollars, retained by the Treasurer in July, 1862, to the then holders of the Public Debt.

When I commenced the duties of Comptroller, in January, 1862, it was to find an empty Treasury and much confusion prevailing in its affairs.

It is a satisfaction that I shall surrender the office to the charge of my successor with the Treasury overflowing in the abundance of its means, and the affairs of this office, if not wholly perfect, at least much improved.

I have the honor to subscribe myself, very respectfully, your obedient servant,

S. S. MAFFIT,
Comptroller.
